

LORD ROSEBERRY WARNS PEERS AGAINST REJECTING BUDGET

Former Liberal Leader, Although Strong Opponent of Budget, Advises Against Preventing Crisis.

TO REJECT BUDGET IS TO PLAY GAME OF REVOLUTIONISTS

Two Other Eminent Peers, Lord James of Herford and Lord Balfour of Burleigh, Are Against Rejection

Rumor That King Edward Will Endeavor to Induce Lords to Tenuously Pass Budget—No Assurance from Prime Minister Asquith Eventhough Cabinet Would Consent to Dissolution of Parliament.

William T. Stead

London, Nov. 24.—The lobby of Westminster during the debate in the House of Lords on the budget was like the cage of Aesop's Fables of all the animals. The King, Lord Roseberry's speech, warning the peers that to reject the Lloyd-George budget would be to play the game of revolutionists, and declaring that he would not vote for Lord Lansdowne's resolution to adjourn the debate and to reject the budget made a strong impression. I saw him leave the House with a high and it was like a banner by the side of a Cossack Cuirassier. Lord Roseberry, who had been followed by Lord Balfour, shoulder to shoulder, James of Herford and Balfour of Burleigh both with a strong argument in favor of the budget, the debate is to be adjourned until Monday. This gives rise to the report that King Edward will use his influence to prevent the defeat of the budget. The Duke of Connaught, who is all for the budget, and Asquith

Would Asquith Disown Parliament?

If the King can induce the House of Lords to pass the budget without his adjournment, Prime Minister Asquith refused a motion to adjourn the debate when it comes to a pinch the King may prevail. The cabinet would then be compelled to take in the event of the defeat of the budget. The proposal of resigning all members in favor of the budget in some quarters in order to compel the country to realize the importance of the budget, to prevent the government by the peers, but is deprecated by the majority on the ground that it would be like running away. If the budget is wrecked, the members will probably attempt to call a vote of no confidence in the House of Commons alone, trusting to a sufficient majority to be organized, which a half of the nobility can be organized.

Liberal Will Win.

Speculation is rife as to the probable result of a general election. It is to be expected to work to the advantage of Ireland, Scotland and Wales. The North of England is said to be in nearly as bad a position as London and the South of England. No one anticipates a majority but a coalition of Liberal and Conservative, which would give a Liberal majority from 10 to 20, including the Ulster.

Mr. Duke of York Sprak.

The government's plan for the early prorogation of the House of Commons was not met this afternoon when it was announced that because so many peers wished to speak on the budget bill it would be necessary to continue the debate until next week and that a division would be held on Monday.

It was hoped that a vote would be reached tomorrow, and that the bill would be read in the House of Commons in the final days of the month.

London, Nov. 24.—The budget, as the House of Lords met this afternoon, was not moved by the peers to make the bill stand for the budget. Both parties agreed what will happen in the house come out Monday.

The budget will then be read in the Commons on Tuesday. Asquith said: "What do you mean by that?" Winston Churchill talked in his latest speech, presented to the House, of "one resolute prime minister."

Will the "resolute prime minister" be able to stand up to the budget? The bold blots of Liberalism went mainly, boldly, before the Lords, three on the Conservative side, and the two Liberal peers in consequence of the rejection of the budget, and go to the country immediately. The Conservative party in the House of Commons has a vote of 100,000 on the issue against the peers or will the people demand a mandate to draw the line? The budget will be uppered into a polite old gentleman's debating society.

Mr. Elton Gurney.

In the first day's debate, Earl Crewe, tall, lively, young, once Captain, the health opponents of the

N.T.R. CLASSIFICATION INVESTIGATION REPORT

Charge That Contractors Obtained Higher Classification for Work Than They Should Have Is Subject of Conflicting Evidence—Engineers' Examination Was of Most Superficial Character.

Ottawa, Ont., Nov. 24.—The correspondence of the Canadian government to the commission of Hugh Lumsden, chief engineer of the National Transcontinental Railway, is to be tabled in the House of Commons yesterday by Hon. Geo. P. Graham at the request of R. H. Donnelley, who has submitted open with a series of letters from Mr. H. A. Woods protesting especially the way over-classification of the Transcontinental.

With regard to one section of the work, says Mr. Woods, in nearly every case where the cutting was through a ledge rock, the estimates given were for only rock and are double, or more than double, the cost of the work. In fact the specifications have been entirely ignored and an excessive amount of material has been used in judgment, but as I understand, by specific instructions "from the top."

Mr. Woods gave a great number of instances, submitting a typewritten list and a copy of his letter, and some further correspondence. Mr. Woods' write on March 30, 1908, is as follows:

Other Objections

Among other things he said: "While we well know it is not possible for the contractors to estimate the exact size of the line in all cases, we are satisfied little if any attention has been paid to the amount of material to the amount of the work done by some contractors. It would seem that where subcontractors are employed, indications and other legends to the amount of material moved outside of the show stakes, they should not be allowed to do so."

On June 19, 1908, Mr. Woods wrote that the overcharge in District "B" of April 29, 1908, was $60,000. The objections of Mr. Woods continued and by January and February 1909, they had been increased to $100,000, to pass upon these cuttings was under consideration. Mr. Lumsden wrote on Feb. 12, 1909, to Mr. H. A. Woods, chief engineer of the G.T.P., suggesting the name of Mr. Collingwood Schreiber as the man to whom the investigation accepted the position on March 22, 1909.

Wanted to Be Heard

June 10, Contractor McArthur wired to the commission protesting again and again taking taken on the report of the arbitrators, and the opportunity being given first to the contractors to do so.

On June 10, Mr. H. A. Woods, chief engineer of the G.T.P., wrote to the chairman of the commission stating that the arbitrators had not been given an opportunity on the 155 miles of his district between Friday evening May 21, and Saturday morning May 22.

"I must protest," he wrote, "against the manner in which such inspection was taken. It was done in a hasty, haphazard and too superficial to form a correct idea of what the material was like."

Mr. Woods said that he was advised by his attorney that there was to be no argument. In two instances Mr. Woods, in order to have the opportunity of passing some comment on the work he attempted to explain and was given time to do so, but the opportunity was made to feel that it would not be tolerated. He gave in some detail the rail cutting, and the contractor made note that an average distance of thirteen miles a day was covered.

Specialists Took No Note

Mr. Poulton said that when Messrs. Kellher and Lumsden walked through some of the rock cuts and took measurements and took notes, but at different times suggested notes to be taken of certain measurements, and in doing so, knowing or even asking the reason of its having been done.

The average distance of the section of B miles was gone over "in two and a half days," said Mr. Poulton.

"But that's different," said Mr. Poulton, "because there might be a few points which may need to be held up in a point of view, and that's what I did. I made notes on some roads taken from a superficial examination such as has been done by the three arbitrators, and at the end of June and the beginning of July, and when after the greater portion of the cutting was well done, I made notes on the road, and that notwithstanding the ability and experience of these gentlemen, the difference in the state of the materials as it appeared then on the slope of the cutting from what it was when the cutting was well done, caused them to form a just and correct estimate, and that it is unfair and unequal to require the government to give a final judgment on such a superficial examination for one reason."

Complex Concurrence Inspection

On June 10, District Engineer Donnelley also wrote to Mr. Parent giving his complaints as to the manner in which the classification had been inspected. The inspectors, he said, had asked him no questions as to the work done, and had not arrived at the method of classification adopted by the arbitrators concerning the cutting, and had been riding on a hand car through them. At each end of the cuts, Mr. Schreiber and Mr. Woods, and Mr. Kellher, together, Mr. Lumsden being generally left to himself. Mr. Schreiber did not like the way the work was being left to him, and had left the work to Mr. Kellher.

He added: "The work was conducted in walking or riding on a hand car over some twenty or twenty-one miles, and the classification was made by a most cursory inspection of cuts and horizons. A great deal of the work for two years and our engineers wondered how anyone could arrive at a fair classification in five minutes time when it had taken that it would be in the classification of the material.

Cursory Inspection Wrong.—While I do not pretend to say that I am not equally to blame, since the work to the classified proportion of the work, and the frequent intervals during construction, still I am positive that a cursory inspection of the work in progress in any place is absolutely worthless. I state a statement showing the number of common excavation classified in 12 days trip, and I am forced to say that the resident engineers were in the best position to make classifications if they had been given the time.

Mr. Woods' letter was sent to Gordon Grant, the chief engineer, suggesting that the resident engineer be accompanied on his intended trip of his inspection trips to districts "B" and "C" to see what progress could be made to insure conclusive results. It certainly must hold the record on the case.

Mr. Donetcy's statement shows that the total solid rock excavation inspected during six days was 2,930 cubic yards, and the total solid rock and common excavation 13,035, 80 cubic yards.

Still another letter was also sent out by Mr. Woods to the assistant district engineer.

On July 21st, a letter was sent to Gordon Grant, the chief engineer, suggesting that the resident engineer be prevented from making his inspection trips to districts "B" and "C" to see what progress could be made to insure conclusive results.

On July 22nd, Chairman Parent announced to President Hayes of the G.T.P. that he had been appointed to succeed Chief Engineer Lumsden and that in view of the circumstances, the arbitrators were making the re-arrangement.

"We do not know," said Mr. Woods, "what the arbitrators had in view in making the hurried visit they did, and it is possible that it was merely of interest to them individually."

On June 25, 1909, the commissioners sent a circular to the contractors forbidding the proceedings of the arbitrators as being improper and illegal for the following reasons:

"That the engineers on the line who classified the work were not afforded a reasonable hearing and an opportunity to present their case."

Then the contractors were afforded an opportunity to show cause, and the commissioners were given an opportunity to hear the evidence.

FORT SASKATCHEWAN

Bulletin New York.

A small fire was started by the presence of mind of George Taylor, jeweler, a few nights ago. He had just returned from a trip to the city and was marching to light when the head light hit the window, instantly setting fire to the cotton lining in the window, of which there was a quantity. George Taylor took off his coat and hat and ate some of the cotton, but did not burn, but not before the hat was burned.

Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Robertson are visiting from the city. Mr. Robertson is a fellow of the Royal Society of Canada and is giving the benefit of his knowledge to the people of the country who have visited Mr. Robertson's residence. He is a man of great knowledge in the cause of missionary work in the West.

INJUNCTION NOT GRANTED.

Crown Interested in Question of Postponement of Sale of Peigan Lands.

MacLeod, Nov. 23—Chief Justice Sifton of the Alberta Supreme Court, refused to postpone the trial of injunction applied by Big Swan and sixty Peigan Indians against the ad- vocation of the Peigan Indians to the river at Pincher Creek of a portion of the Peigan Indian reserve.

The Indians alleged that the water in favor of the Indians had been procured by fraud and that the majority of the Indians in the band were opposed to it. Mr. Justice Sifton, Mr. Justice C. C. McCaig, K.C., of Edmonton, and Attorney Mr. MacLeod, of MacLeod, told the Indians that the water was not fit for drinking, but that it was the Indians' water.

THE RING

LAUDER TO MEET MAXWELL.

Calgary, Nov. 24.—The boxing contest between the Lethbridge champion and the champion of Canada, and Young Maxwell, which is to take place at Moose Jaw, on Dec. 1, has been postponed to Dec. 26. Lauder is in fine shape, and although he will have to go some to win, there is a fair chance of his title being in danger.

$3,000,000 BID FOR BIG FIGHT.

Chicago, Nov. 24.—Still the bids come for the Jeffries-Johnson affair. With but seven days to run for the bidding, the offer of $3,000,000 has been beaten, and then again, the contest to Jeff Gleason and the Canadian champion.

The promoters have offered a tidy little sum of $3,000,000, and if the offers hold, the probability is that the fight will be given a trial and tested before the time limit. Early last night it looked as if the $3,000,000 mark for another day at least, but Boise City, Idaho, has bid $3,500,000, and the promoters to remain below the $3,000,000 mark for the fight.

The Idaho capital might just as well have been the one to have the fight taken to the John W. Gatzke club.

It would have cost no more, for if the reports from the wire are to be believed, the fight already has been awarded to F. E. L. Smith's rink (Vice-President of the R. C. A. M. P.) and G. Verner's rink (President from W. J. Irwin's, Idaho).

The draw for tonight is as follows:

McKee vs. Gatzke.

Stevens vs. Carmichael.

Oremy vs. Hosten.

Robertson vs. Hunt.

Leave the first and third games. The second went off the Puritan by the highest score yet made on the alloys so far this season.
